DEDICATION

This Wickiup of 1931 is dedicated to that unreal and yet very real something—the Spirit of Youth. It is offered in tribute to that spirit which has made for idealism in mankind, for splendid day-dreaming, for noble sacrifice; and which, however provocative of rashness and stubbornness and error, has kept alive in the world the love of adventure, the willingness to change, the desire and struggle for progress. . .

FOREWORD

It has been our aim to set before you an account of this whole glorious year, and to suggest how life on our campus forms a part of that never-ending procession of the eternally modern youth which files through the pages of history. We have tried to picture the frivolous events of the campus; we have attempted to interpret the more serious moments. It is our hope that we have compiled a record which in years to come will remind you of these halcyon days.
