

Valued Tradition of Giving and Remembrance Continues

Employees of ISU Libraries come together every fall to help fulfill the needs of Green Acres Elementary students and their classrooms. Gary Domitz, who served as the Head of Special Collections, and his wife Carla, had an annual tradition of donating school supplies. Gary and Carla tragically passed away in 2001. ISU Libraries employees have continued to donate annually in honor of their memory since 2002. In fall 2018, employees donated $200 in cash and $600 in supplies. These donations are delivered to the Green Acres second-grade classroom of Pam Domitz, daughter of Gary and Carla, and benefit all students attending the school. If you would like to contribute, please contact Jolene (208) 282-3228 or Pam (208) 282-2441.

School supplies, monetary donations, and reams of copier paper are all welcome.

"Photographing the Snakes of Idaho" Exhibit and Presentation

In conjunction with his photography exhibit in the Oboler Library, Dr. Chuck Peterson gave a presentation, "Photographing the Snakes of Idaho," in the Idaho State University Library Blackrock Commons area Wednesday, Sept. 19. The exhibit, "Snakes of Idaho," was on display from July through September 2018, in the Library's 1st-floor art exhibit area. The exhibit included a PowerPoint presentation showing the habitats of the snakes with maps and landscape photographs.

An avid nature photographer, Professor Chuck Peterson has taught in the Department of Biological Sciences at Idaho State University since 1988 and has conducted herpetological training sessions for many agencies and corporations. His research interests include the ecology and conservation biology of amphibians and reptiles. He has authored and coauthored numerous books, book chapters, journal articles, notes, and technical reports. Much of his work focuses on reptile populations located in Idaho's Snake River Plain and on amphibian populations in the Greater Yellowstone Ecosystem.

The well-attended presentation concluded with Dr. Peterson answering questions and allowing attendees to handle some of his less dangerous snakes.

Message from the Library

We welcome you, our Library users and supporters. Whether you are a first-year student in Idaho Falls, on your pharmacy rotation in Anchorage Alaska, or are a researcher in Pocatello, our mission is to serve you. While we are present in Meridian, Idaho Falls and Pocatello, our services and collections are also available digitally

ISU Libraries provides access to a number of streaming video and audio products through Alexander Street Press/ProQuest. If you are a student, faculty, or staff at ISU, just log in with your ISU ID# and last name. Here is a current list of the streaming video and audio products for which the library provides access:

- Counseling and Therapy in Video: Volumes I-IV
- Nursing Assessment in Video
- Nursing Education in Video
- Ethnographic Video Online: Volumes I-IV
- Dance Online: Dance in Video: Volumes I-II
- Theatre in Video: Volumes I-II
- Music Online:
  - Classical Music in Video
  - Classical Music Library (Streaming audio)
- Garland Encyclopedia of World Music (Text plus some streaming audio)
  - Music and Performing Arts
  - Opera in Video

Why use these academic resources instead of free social media like YouTube and Spotify? One reason is that they contain high quality, educational materials such as important performances of professional dance, theatre, and opera companies, Classical music performances and audio recordings, interviews, documentaries, classes, and other instructional items. Complete bibliographic information regarding the authors, performers, date of performance, or recording, and sometimes the original liner notes accompany the recordings. Transcripts are included where appropriate, and users are able to create audio and video clips, playlists, and more. Subject coverage runs from the performing arts (dance, theatre, music) to ethnography to the health professions. Need assistance? Ask for help at the reference desk, call (208) 282-3152, or use our Chat or Ask a Librarian service (isu.edu/library/contact-us/ask/).

Oboler Library Enters Partnership with Government Publishing Office

Recently, the Oboler Library entered into a partnership with the United States Government Publishing Office (GPO) to permanently retain and preserve several historic titles. The Preservation Steward program, established by GPO, seeks libraries committed to preserving and retaining print documents within their collections. The intent of this preservation effort is to have tangible, print copies of important government publications distributed throughout the country in several regions, regardless of the digital availability of these publications. The GPO uses the regions defined by the Census Bureau, and regional distribution of the preservation collections ensures permanent availability of these titles for the public to use, reinforcing the mission of the Federal Depository Library Program (FDLP) "to provide free, ready, and permanent public access to Federal Government information, now and for future generations."

Oboler Library has pledged to retain and preserve its collections of Congressional Records and predecessor titles. The volumes of The debates and proceedings in the Congress of the United States, also known as Annals of Congress, cover the first through eighteenth Congresses, 1789-1824. Register of debates in Congress follows this title, which covers the second session of the eighteenth Congress through the first session of the Twenty-fifth Congress, 1824-1837. This title, continued by the Congressional Globe, covers the twenty-third through Forty-second Congresses, 1833-1873. The Congressional Record began with the forty-third Congress in 1874. The Library has also agreed to retain and preserve the Handbook of North American Indians from the Smithsonian Institution.

Art in the Oboler Library

Since the last issue of Between the Lines, the Oboler Library has hosted several art exhibitions featuring the media of printmaking, painting, photography, sculpture, and more. The library held public receptions for most of the shows to allow people to meet the artists informally. Recent shows included:

- Dr. Chuck Peterson's "Snakes of Idaho" photography
- Roy Reynolds, oil paintings
- Student work from the ISU Printmaking classes taught by Leekyung Kang
- Gallery 12 group show, paintings and more
- Marilyn Hoff Hansen's "Daughters of Eve, paintings, sculpture, cast stone

Upcoming art exhibits will include Linda Aman (July-September 2019), with a presentation in September, the local district chapter of the Colored Pencil Society of America, October – December 2019, an exhibit of ISU metals student work in October, and the Senior show of student artist Victoria Fischer, November – December 2019. Keep an eye out for the juried traveling exhibit of book arts, Bookers' Dozen, in September 2019. For more information about art in the Library, please contact Kristi at austkris@isu.edu or (208) 282-4073.

Annie Pike Greenwood Exhibit

During October, selections from the Library's Annie Pike Greenwood Collection were on display at the Idaho State University Oboler Library. Greenwood's grandson and donor of the collection, H. Kingsley Thurber III, attended the reception, as well as Marcia Franklin, Idaho Public Television (IdahoPTV) Idaho producer of the Idaho Experience series. Annie Pike Greenwood is the focus of a recent episode that aired October 25. IdahoPTV filmmakers were on the ISU campus during the 2017-2018 winter conducting interviews and filming the collection in preparation for the documentary.

Greenwood was, among other things, an early 20th-century western writer. First published in 1934, her novel, "We Sagebrush Folks," was republished in 1988 with a foreword by Jo Ann Ruckman, emeritus ISU faculty in the Department of History; and again in 2003 with an introduction by Susan H. Swetnam, emeritus ISU faculty in the Department of English.

The book is a memoir of Greenwood and her husband's move to southern Idaho and their farming life. Her collection includes, in part, her original manuscript for "We Sagebrush Folks," published and unpublished poetry, prose, manuscripts, correspondence, photographs, and family history.

Idaho Health Sciences Library Welcomes New Staff, Location

Idaho State University is home to the Idaho Health Sciences Library, which has its own homepage at isu.edu/library/libandcoll/ihs/, and two health science librarians: Ben Bolin and Kristin Whitman. Ben Bolin has an office in the Oboler library in Pocatello, and Kristin Whitman is located at ISU Meridian.

The IHSL serves all of the university's health sciences programs and provides reference, instruction, and collection development services for these departments. Bolin and Whitman teach a variety of subjects, including research strategies for evidence-based practice, and are available for one-shot or embedded instruction. Embedded instruction allows those teaching courses to add a subject librarian to assist the students within their course. This, essentially, provides students with a librarian who can assist with research throughout the semester as needed. Along with these services, Bolin and Whitman also maintain library Subject Guides that provide specific research help in various disciplines within the health sciences. Bolin and Whitman look forward to working with their library department liaisons to ensure ISU

Libraries' collections contain the most relevant and up-to-date materials to support health sciences research at the university.

The Idaho Health Sciences Library is pleased to announce that it is now offering services in a new location on the Meridian campus. Located in room 844, the 1300 square-foot space offers two study rooms, a reference desk service, library computers, a select print collection, and access to assistance from a full-time librarian and student workers.

Library Services for Students

ISU Libraries provides many services for students intended to increase success in their studies. The website offers quick online access to quality information for projects and personal learning. The Library offers online and face-to-face research assistance to answer questions and help students move forward in their work.

Students have access to computers, copy machines, a scanner capable of reading a jump drive, and other technologies for accessing information and multimedia resources. Students have the ability to reserve study rooms online or at the Circulation desk, access to open study spaces, Wi-Fi, printing, and can even check out books at the Library. Vending machines and charging stations can be found throughout the building as well.

On all campuses, students can attend library workshops designed to demonstrate the finding of quality sources for assignments. Through the Library website, students have access to self-paced tutorials, as well as YouTube videos, that offer further instruction on using databases and conducting research more effectively.

Celebrating 110 Years

Idaho State University Eli M. Oboler Library Celebrated 110 Years in the U.S. Government Publishing Office's (GPO's) Federal Depository Library Program (FDLP). The FDLP ensures that the public has free access to Federal documents in participating libraries across the Nation. The libraries, in partnership with GPO, work in support of Keeping America Informed.

"Our library has proudly served as a federal depository library since 1908 when Senator Borah sponsored the designation. We are currently the only depository east of Boise in the state of Idaho" said Beth Downing, Government Documents Librarian at Eli M. Oboler Library.

Through the FDLP, approximately 1,150 libraries nationwide work with GPO to provide public access to authentic, published information from all three branches of the federal government in print and electronic formats. The program's antecedents can be traced back to the act of Congress dated Dec. 27, 1813 (3 Stat. 140), which provided that one copy of the journals and documents of the Senate and House be sent to each university and college and each historical society in each state. GPO has operated the FDLP since 1895.

Librarians at nationwide FDLP libraries also offer expert assistance in navigating digital copies of many of the historical and current Government documents through govinfo.gov and GPO's Catalog of U.S. Government Publications.

An event to celebrate the Eli M. Oboler Library's 110th anniversary of offering these services occurred Nov. 1, 2018. Laurie Hall, the Superintendent of Documents for the FDLP, delivered a keynote speech. Additional dignitaries in attendance include Pocatello Mayor Brian Blad, representatives for Senator Mike Crapo – Farhana Hibbert (Regional Director), and for Senator James E. Rische – Renee Richardson (Regional Director), as well as Pocatello City Council Member, Heidi Adamson.
