Student Council

Led by President Lenhoff Furgeson, the 1935-36 council served one of the most eventful years in Associated Student history. The Council began by setting up a cabinet form of government, which functioned so well that no department ended the year with a deficit.

Highlights included an unsuccessful recall movement, consolidation of Bengal and Wickiup, multi-nominated candidates, and constitutional revision measures.

Other council members were Junius Jensen, vice-president; Lois Anderson, secretary; Albert Gillesby, treasurer; Rita LeBailly, women's representative; Eldon Boice, men's representative; Michael Bastian, senior president; Duane Pennoyer, junior president; Francis Bunker, sophomore president, and Harry Thurston, freshman president.

Associated Women Students

A.W.S., by far the largest women's organization on the Southern Branch campus, aims to bring the women of the University into closer contact for mutual benefit and companionship, to promote a variety of activities and to encourage every woman to take an active part in at least one of these activities, to strive for a spirit of friendliness among the students, and to encourage loyalty to the ideals and traditions of the University.

Through the Big and Little Sister movements new women students are helped to become oriented and acquainted on the campus. Besides this movement, the A.W.S. sponsored: a tea in honor of Mrs. John R. Nichols, the Charm School, the Spring Style Show, the Women's Formal, and spring tapping day for honors won by freshman women.

Senior Class

On our graduating classes rest the hopes of those who remain that this will become a four-year university, and the contentions that this college can and does produce graduates of high scholastic ability. The senior class of 1936 recognized its obligation and faithfully discharged it. Officers: Michael Bastian, president; Woodrow Herbert, vice president; Juanita Bonar, secretary; Glenn Corbett, treasurer.

Junior Class

In spite of their heavy Pharmacy courses and participation in extra-curricular activities, the junior class made an enviable scholastic record. Duane Pennoyer, president; Thomas Brantley, vice president; George Cox, secretary; and Bob Coleman, treasurer, were the officers who conducted the affairs of the class quietly and efficiently.

FRESHMEN

Sophomore Class

By giving Francies Bunker a decisive majority, the sophomore class definitely rejected proposals to eliminate hacking and the edict. In a forceful speech Bunker declared himself a staunch friend of initiations and a merciless foe of machine politics. Other officers: Charles Latham, vice-president; Dorothy White, secretary; and Homer Satterfield, treasurer.

Freshman Class

A clean, quiet election campaign characterized the entering class last fall, when they replaced the temporary class council with officers for the year. The leaders chosen were Harry Thurston, president; Bob Bothwell, vice-president; Helene Smith, secretary; and Ralph Comstock, treasurer.

Athletic Committee

To advise the athletic department in its expenditures and general policies, to check the budget as it is submitted by the head of the athletic department and to decide on the advisibility of scheduling definite games and carrying on a definite program, is the difficult task of the Athletic Committee, headed by Chairman Thomas P. West.

Also it has aided the athletic department in maintaining the quality of athletic competition at the Southern Branch. Under its administration the football and basketball teams have gained wide recognition for their prowess, attracting teams of larger colleges to bid for athletic relationships. It has also helped build up a varied program in intra-mural sports which has become a prominent feature of the U.I.S.B. sport activities.

Social Committee

The entire social program of the Southern Branch is guided and directed by an appointed Social Committee which this year worked under Marguerite P. Drew, faculty adviser, and Charles Latham, chairman. The committee is appointed from members of various organizations by the student body president and approved by the Student Council. The purposes of the committee are to direct and promote campus social events.

This year it directly sponsored the Homecoming Dance, the Social Committee Formal Dinner Dance, and the All College Formal Dinner Dance. This year's committee included Elva Berryman, Alice Cosgrove, Eleanore Redfield, Charles Parker, Bernice Thamm, Ruth McCormick, Helen Bernhisel, Olga Hines, Phillip Ambrose, Allee Conway, Thomas Brantley, Keith Brown, Lois Anderson, Irene Henderson, secretary, Charles Latham, chairman, and Marguerite Drew, faculty.

Advertising Committee

The Advertising Committee was formed last spring when the student council recognized a need to control advertising solicitors operating in the University's name. Relegated to the committee were the duties of authorizing soliciting for programs and publications, controlling bulletin boards, and issuing identification cards to solicitors. Without such cards no advertising may be solicited in the name of the school.

Members of the committee are: Boyd Hodson, A. L. Lillibridge, faculty members; Lenhoff Furgeson, Bengal business manager, Stephen Alley, Wickiup business manager, Hayden Stites, athletic manager, student members.

Owen Stratton, Bob Coleman, Charlton Laird, Hayden Stites, secretary, Edmund Morrison, chairman

Publications Committee

The formulation of a plan to consolidate the staffs and operations of the two publications in the interest of greater efficiency has been the principal work of the committee during the past year.

The committee has been something of a storm center of political controversy because of its strategic importance as advisory body for student publications. Modified control is exercised in its advisory capacity to student officers, and its suggestions in matters of doubt as to the policies of the publications.

Members are Edmund Morrison, chairman; Charleton G. Laird, faculty; Hayden Stites, secretary; Bob Coleman and Owen Stratton, student members.

The Interorganization Council

The Interorganization Council is made up of the directing officers of all campus groups. It was formed in 1935 to unify these groups into a cooperative body to work together for a definite aim. Officers for 1936 are: Junius Jensen, chairman, Bob Coleman, vice-chairman, Mary Nixon, secretary and treasurer.

Other members are: Michael Bastian, Duane Pennoyer, Francis Bunker, Harry Thurston, Bernice Thamm, Eleanore Redfield, Eldon Boice, Mark Lallatin, Allee Conway, Dorothy White, Rodney Lowe, Mary Nixon, Ralph Lacy, Marguerite Hodge, Keith Brown, Kenneth Harten, Cleota Ayers, Neal Moon, Rita LeBailly, Roxanne Phoenix, Irene Henderson, Verna Bostic, Sam Hanson, Sherman Lowe, John Best, Andy Singley, Woodrow Herbert, Tom Brantley, Charles Latham, Bob Bothwell, Howard Nelson, Vera Esplin, Harry Whitten, Lynn Pack.

Bob Coleman, vice president, Junius Jensen, president, Mary Nixon, secretary

Lois Anderson, Albert Gillesby, O. D. Garrison, chairman

Finance Committee

The Finance Committee consists of Orval D. Garrison, Bursar; Albert Gillesby, student treasurer; and Lois Anderson, student secretary. The committee serves as an advisory board to the Student Council in financial matters.

Upon the order of the Council, the committee has power to stop any expenditures of student money by any department, pending an investigation by the Council. If the committee sees fit, it may withdraw the remaining apportionment of student money budgeted to that department.

Because of the excellent condition in which all departments maintained their finances during the past year, the committee did not find it necessary to take action against any of them.
